About This Game

Welcome to Wordabeasts, the multiplayer party game full of adventure and intellect!

After starting your adventure, all players will join the game with their mobile device. Then the hunt begins as all players receive words on their devices and try to quickly think of a single clue word that connects them together. Everyone earns points for guessing other player's words and them guessing yours!

Wordabeasts can be played with anywhere from 3-8 players, but in the jungle more is definitely merrier. Pack in your friends and family for the adventure of a lifetime! (well, the weekend at least).

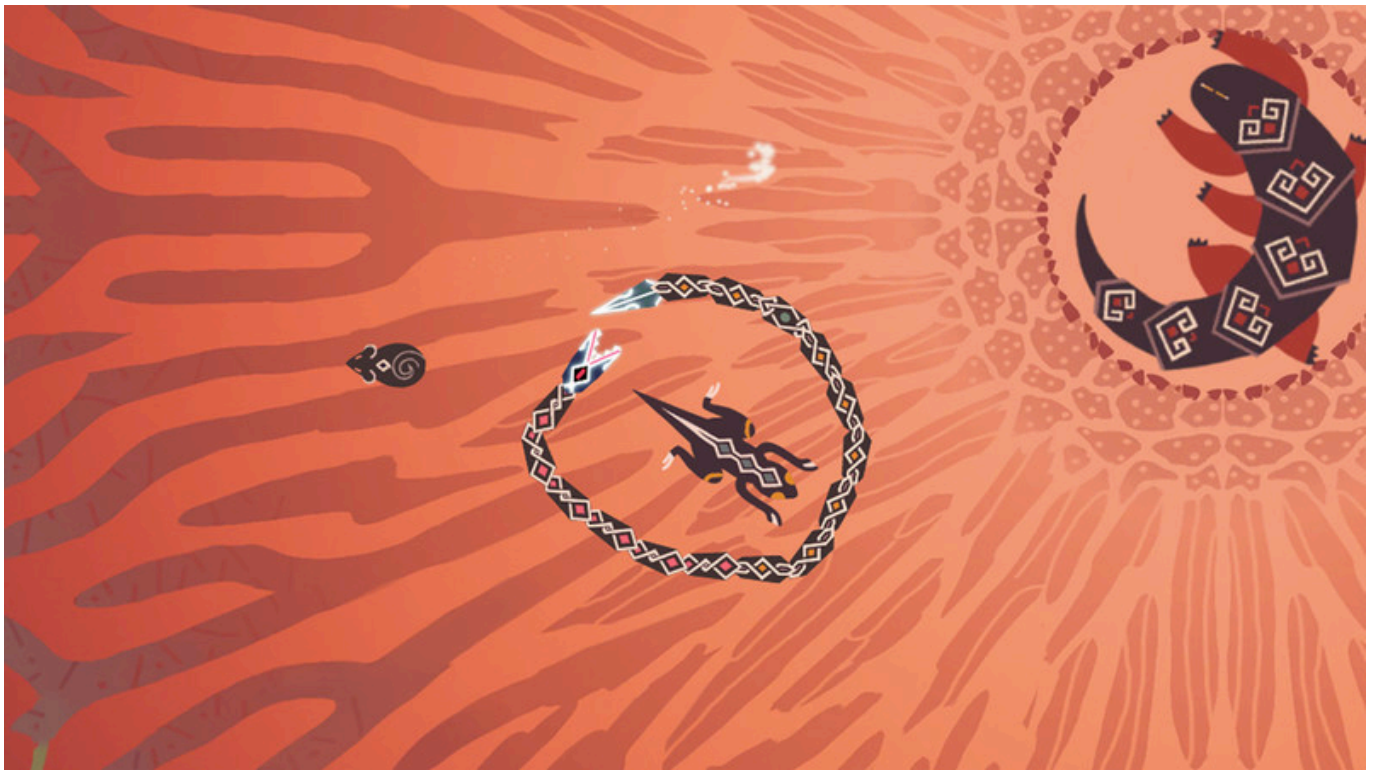

Once starting the game, all players can join through a web browser on their personal mobile device and enter the code on screen to join the safari!

The visuals and the music are spot on for the aesthetic that the developers are obviously going for. Web 1.0 mixed with vaporwave mixed with early chat rooms. The game is imaginative in its location designs and it's obvious that the developers put a lot of heart into this game. Look at the screenshots: if the art style catches your fancy, it's probably for you.

It's not perfect. The the last fifth of the game has a very abrupt tonal shift while also cranking the difficulty. A few of the endgame "hookshot" sequences feel unfair. This is forgivable, but it is a minor blemish. A less minor blemish is the control scheme: the bookmark controls are confusing and will cause you to teleport when you didn't mean to, and there aren't the normal configuration options PC users are used to, most noticeably mouse sensitivity (which probably why I found the hookshot sequences so hard).

Also: Please release a soundtrack.. Get it now, thank me later. Not a very good rendition of the tabletop and just not a good game.. Very well done VR demo. Hard to believe it is free!. Probably the best indie Kart racer I've ever played, it's not perfect but it is purrrfect, but seriously, it does a lot of things right, most of which can be found in competitors as well but still implemented well, I also don't recall seeing the Nitro/Oil system in any other game (essentially drifts, collisions and the like earn you energy which you can use as either nitro or oil to mess with your opponents which is neat). The cats are all adorable and I like how they have their own special abilities, would be interesting if the cars had stats too though, overall it's a solid game and my little brother LOVES it

The game is fun all for about 20 minutes. Tops.

It's very early in access, and very rough, but the graphics look promising enough to make it a good game. The biggest question is will they ever stick around to complete it and make it something that truly lasts and make it something that is fun to play for more then a very short period of time? Doubtful in my eyes, but I hope they prove me wrong!

Watch my video link above if you want to see why this game got a 47% early access score from me. Thumbs down. There's just far better ways to spend your money then this. Toilet Paper in the real world is certainly one of them!. its okay so far but needs more lots more

I enjoy playing making my own comics better then the other software I tried. I hope you add more clothes , hair and maybe some skins.. A 5 bucks well spent.

This was so cute, my heart nearly melted, I would definitely recommend to anybody that's thinking about watching this.. Classic FPS with a focus on realistic feel and open maps that give you considerable leeway on how to complete missions.. I think this would be a better game to play on your phone. Maybe it gets better with more development, if so wait for it. Cool concept, was really excited but so far it's pretty boring.. The game is making alot of progress. There is still a steep learning curve and the lack of creating twine is difficult for beginners lol. Guys at first you think its boring but , you need to play it with your friend at 0:00 than its ♥♥♥♥ing nice. :D

Look at my profil there is a screenshot from my frist Goal.

Best Game ever 10/10
